The Auburn Fire Division

Providing Quality Fire Protection for Auburn Citizens

The City of Auburn's 2008 Citizen Survey indicates that 86% of our citizens are satisfied with the quality of Auburn's fire protection. While citizens consistently report high satisfaction rankings with Auburn's fire protection, the City of Auburn is continuously seeking ways in which to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of its fire services.

Recently, the City received a letter from Insurance Services Office, Inc. (ISO), indicating that an analysis of Auburn's fire insurance rating had been completed. This was the first rating report Auburn received in over 20 years. ISO ratings are just one measure of a community's ability to reduce fire losses. In 2007, ISO issued a report that gave the City an opportunity to address areas that could potentially have lowered Auburn's fire insurance rating from a Class 2/9 to a Class 4/9. ISO ratings are assigned a value of 1 to 10, with 1 being the best rating a city can receive. In the ensuing months, City officials continued the implementation of a long-term plan for improvements to fire safety that included additional facilities and equipment, as well as an overhaul to the City's fire response zones. As a result of these and other changes, ISO has issued the City of Auburn a Class 3/9 fire insurance rating, effective immediately.

What does this rating mean for citizens? Some insurance companies consider ISO scores as a factor in establishing fire insurance rates for property owners. In general, residential insurance rates are typically the same for cities with a Class 2 to Class 4 rating. Commercial insurance rates generally see minimal changes within the same range of class ratings. As a Class 3/9 city, Auburn ranks in the top 4.1% of fire divisions in the state and the top 4.4% in the nation.

While ISO looks at many factors when assigning a rating, including distribution of fire stations, manpower, water supply, and communications capabilities, additional equally important factors are not taken into consideration. These factors include actual fire losses, response times, and fire mitigation efforts. The City seeks to reduce fire losses in a number of ways, including strong code enforcement and fire inspections of existing buildings. Losses are also minimized through excellent response times. The Auburn Fire Division prides itself on an average response time of less than five minutes. Recently, staff from the Fire and Communications Divisions and the City's Information Technology Department collaborated on a project to overhaul the City's fire response zones. Using the City's extensive GIS system, staff divided the City into response zones and by using complex "fastest route" calculations, assigned corresponding fire stations to respond to calls within a particular response zone. The new response zones have had a positive impact on response times and have increased the efficiency and effectiveness of the Fire Division's response to calls for service.

Proper facilities and equipment are essential components of any fire division. The City Council has demonstrated its on-going commitment to providing quality fire protection for citizens by approving the addition of a fifth fire station in Auburn Technology Park South, the purchase of a 95' aerial platform fire truck, and the construction of a burn building training facility for fire personnel. In addition, City officials will begin acquiring land for Fire Station 6 during the next biennial budget.

City officials will continue to place a high priority on fire protection services. Currently, the Auburn Fire Division is working on a plan of action to specifically address the ISO report with the goals of maintaining and improving both the City's ISO rating and a proven track record of excellence in fire protection. Auburn's citizens expect and deserve nothing less.

For more information, please contact the City of Auburn's Public Safety Department at 501-3110.

Change Your Clock - Change Your Batteries

Daylight Saving Time ends Sunday, November 2. Remember to move your clocks back one hour before you go to bed Saturday night.

The Auburn Fire Division encourages citizens to use the end of Daylight Saving Time as a reminder to change the batteries in smoke detectors throughout their homes. A working smoke detector should be placed on every level of a home and in every bedroom.

Because Every Drop Counts... Water Conservation Tip For October

How many times have you emptied a glass half full of ice into the sink? Don't let water go to waste. Instead of pouring water down the drain, use the leftover water and ice cubes to water your indoor plants or your garden.

Everyday Ways to Protect Our Watershed: Use Phosphorus-Free Detergents

Phosphorus can be found in everyday items such as lawn fertilizers, laundry detergents, and automatic dishwashing detergents. While it is an essential nutrient to plant growth, excessive amounts of phosphorus can have an adverse affect on water resources. Phosphorus can make its way into watersheds through everyday household chores such as running the dishwasher or doing laundry. High levels of phosphorus in streams can cause algal blooms and unwanted aquatic plant growth. These plants, and their subsequent decomposition, can harm fish and other aquatic organisms in watersheds. New regulatory discharge limits for phosphorus will potentially increase wastewater treatment plant costs. Fortunately, citizens can help do their part to reduce excess phosphorus from entering the watershed.

Citizens can help Auburn's watershed by simply switching to phosphorus-free detergents.

Many laundry and automatic dishwashing detergents contain as much as 4 - 8% phosphates. You can help by using phosphorus-free laundry and automatic dishwashing detergents. When purchasing these items, keep the following points in mind:

Look for products that contain the following keywords:

- zeolites (a phosphate alternative)
- alternative builders
- phosphorus or phosphate-free
- many products will feature "NP" for "Contains No Phosphorus"
- many brands of laundry detergent now offer a phosphorus-free option

Avoid products that contain words such as:

- STPP (sodium tri-polyphosphates)
- polyphosphates
- phosphate builders
- products may contain a "P" for "Contains Phosphorus"
